Richard,

I have spoken with Jessica a few times over last week and earlier this week. Jessica confirmed that there should not be any new paper work for the new custodians – the email that you sent requesting on-boarding is sufficient for each relevant custodian and the KYC that is on file with OPL will be “AML certified” over to the new custodians and will not need to be re-supplied.

She indicated that some of the brokers might have some additional paperwork and she is tracking down whether that is in fact the case and to the extent there is additional documents for the brokers is working on getting that in process.

Regards,
 Peter

Peter:

Have we received any paperwork from the custodians that some of the accounts will be moving to?

What follow up with Jessica have we had (other than each Plan sending out an email requesting to be on boarded)?

Thanks,

Richard
